

ENDED FIGHT BY COMPROMISE

Senators Finish Their Call Of The House When Question Came Up For Vote.

OUTLOOK FOR MORE TROUBLE SOON

Democrats Insist They Are Ready To Prefer Direct
Charges Against Stephenson's Campaign
Managers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 21.—The stage in the Wisconsin senate when senators on the investigation of Senator Stephenson's primary election expenditures was raised today by an agreement that the majority could kill the investigation resolution now, but allow a reconsideration next Tuesday, when the democrats propose to make specific charges of corrupt use of money in the campaign. The resolution was then killed, 17 to 8, those voting for the investigation being Senators Gaylord, social democrat; Hastings, Pearson and Randolph, democrats; Blaine, Kleczka, Krumroy and Marsh, republicans. The call of the house had lasted for 24 hours.

During the period of arrest while the senators are chattering pleasantly with one another during the dreary call of the house, each senator has been finally under arrest and in the custody of the sergeant-at-arms, some most significant remarks are expected from the present incident.

While the call of the house continued by the combination of democrats, social democrat and La Follette senators, who demand a legislative investigation into the alleged large primary election expenses of Senator Stephenson is looked upon as "horseplay" by some, it is a mighty serious business.

It is serious enough to drag senators from the most remote corners of the state to the capitol, after a tacit agreement had been reached to devote the first week to the drawing and introducing of bills and not take up new business.

Senators joked and laughed over the call yesterday, but the alignment now made will doubtless last throughout the session and be applied to many important pieces of legislation.

Call of the house is an interesting parliamentary procedure that is resorted to only in rare occasions when a small minority may wish to hold up business, or require the appearance of absentees.

When a senator moves a call of the house the president asks if the call is supported and if five members rise in support of the call it is said to be ordered. The doors are then locked and no senators allowed to leave the room.

The roll is immediately called to ascertain the absentees and they are immediately sent for, unless they are absent by previous leave granted by the senate.

While under the call no business can be transacted other than to hear reports from the sergeant-at-arms as to the progress of dragging in absent members. Wherever a member may be found, even though peacefully sleeping in bed, he is placed under arrest and brought to the senate chamber.

The motion to adjourn may be made or a motion to suspend further proceedings under or raise the call. Neither motion prevails unless a majority of all the members elect of the senate vote in favor. In the present call, there were only 18 senators present and as seven were supporting the call, successive attempts to raise the call failed on account of the number of absent members.

When all the members absent without leave are brought in, the call ceases to be effective and business proceeds.

The county option members are getting up a little primary election campaign expense investigation of their own, and a resolution is soon to be introduced to provide for a legislative inquiry into the amount and manner of expenditure made by the liquor interests in the last primary election. Former Assemblyman J. H. Baker, present here this session as the Anti-Saloon League lobbyist, is in charge of this movement.

The situation brings about the questions which will be at stake two years from now when Senator La Follette seeks re-election. Senator Lockney stated that the part the five republicans played in the affair was to place on record every senator on the question of the primary law.

Dad Feltz, Says Whitehead.
"This is the first time I have ever known the senate to violate an understanding of the kind which existed when I left here last week," said Senator John M. Whitehead, when he arrived in Madison this noon and found a call of the house on in the senate.

"It is the first time such a course has been followed. Even in times of great factional and personal bitterness such agreements were always observed to

RIGID PRECAUTIONS TO PREVENT A RIOT

St. Petersburg Authorities Wish No
Demonstration On Fourth Anniversary of Day.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
St. Petersburg, Jan. 21.—The authorities are adopting rigid precautions to prevent any public disturbance or demonstration tomorrow which will be the fourth anniversary of the letter. We have come to a pretty pass in the senate when senators will not keep faith with each other.

"Senator Sanborn, before the adjournment last week, stated the understanding in the most explicit terms on the floor of the senate and the other senators by their silence, gave a tacit agreement to his statement of the case. The senate is certainly getting in a bad way when its members violate such an agreement. I went away with the understanding that no business would be transacted in my absence other than the reference of bills to the revision committee and I know Senator Sanborn and others were under a like impression."

The call of the house inflicted a hardship on many members and for a time last night it looked as though it might be an all night session but the members were permitted to go to their rooms for the night's rest although under arrest of the Sergeant at arms. That it will bring about considerable friction it is feared.

Whether the call of the house is raised or not it means that the lines between the ultras and the less radical republicans will be strained from now on and the talk of harmony in the upper house is a thing of the past. The alignment that has begun now will stand for the rest of the session.

It is thought that the present complication has been stirred up by agents of S. A. Cook who have been in the city and are anxious for an investigation of the primary expenses of Senator Stephenson. Cook's agents had not met with much success until they joined forces with Senators who are known to be of the ultra republican type.

Cook after his defeat last September was apparently led by his lieutenants to lay his plans for a campaign in the legislature. After the November election he sent personal letters to all the members of the senate and assembly elect, regardless of the fact he knew but few personally.

These letters were of congratulatory nature and intimated that a great work was to be done by this legislature. The general impression received was that Cook would still be a candidate for the Senate and despite the fact he had been defeated at the primary.

The action of the senate yesterday has had its effect upon the ultra members of the lower house and it is possible that the talk of the old factional differences being obliterated was merely talk and the fight will go on as merly as ever.

That the whole affair is a scheme to place on record the different members as to the primary is certain. The La Follette Senators really are not any more anxious for an investigation than are others of the administration, but they feel they are playing for the future.

Should an investigation start on our knees where it would end. It might take in all the dealings and campaign subscriptions for the La Follette cause since it first began and this would be from satisfactory.

Glenn's attitude of Senator Stephenson's report is finally made every penny spent will be accounted for and there will be no slipshod methods of making an accounting. It will be a complete accounting.

That the result of this statement will probably be to pass amendments to the primary law as it now stands is certain. It is even intimated that a clause prohibiting democrats from voting in the republican primaries will be introduced.

This will be most strenuously fought by the ultra radical senators who will look to the Senatorial campaign two years away. However if it comes to a issue it is probable that they would be defeated.

Among the bills introduced today are the following:
Senator Fairchild, for a flat tax of 1 per cent on all insurance business, foreign and domestic, done in Wisconsin.

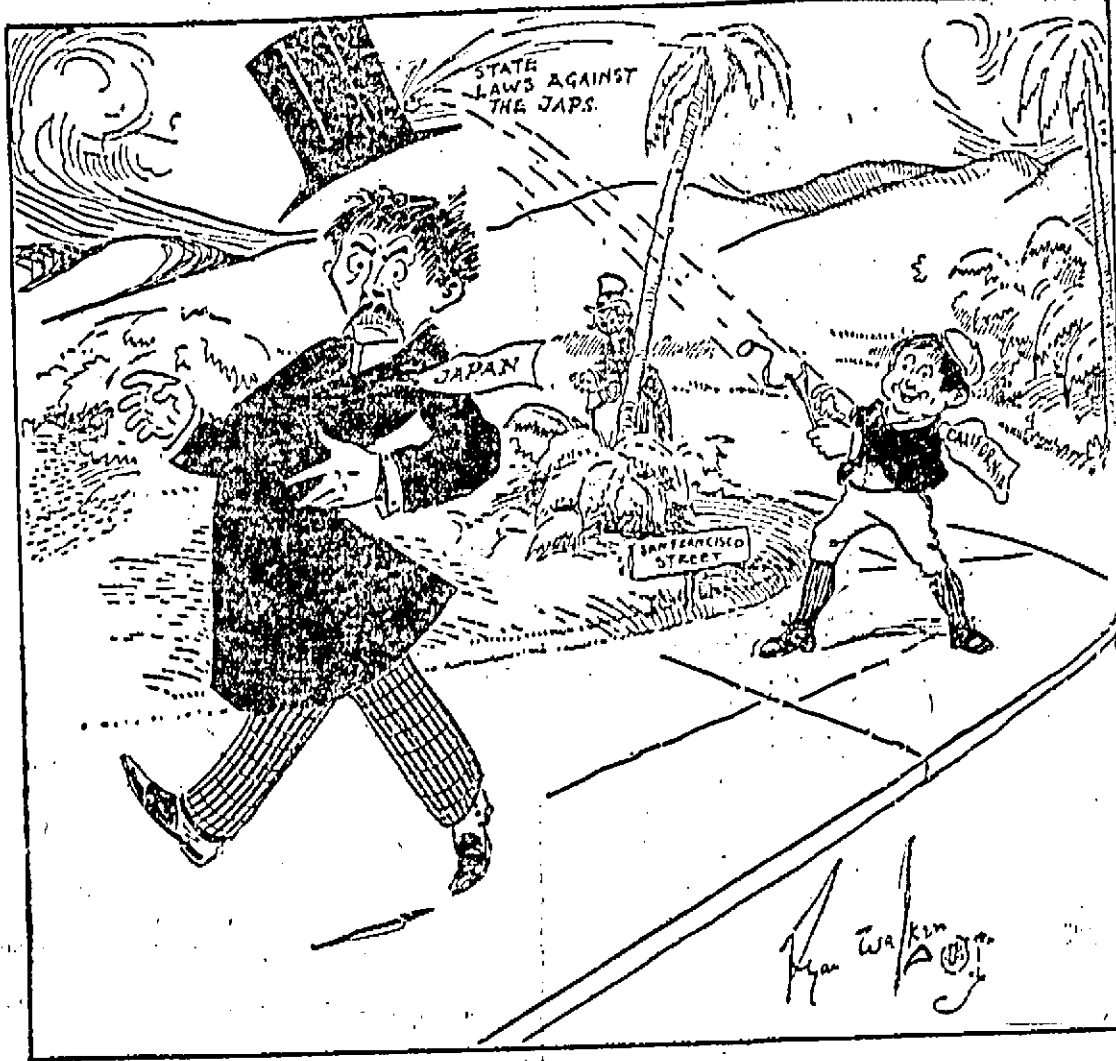

Senator James, "to knock the lawyers' trust," by permitting county judges to give free legal advice.

By Senator Randolph, prohibiting a service charge for light, gas and water, other than that of the regular meter or flat rate.

By Senator Randolph, repealing the "immunity" clause of the law for witnesses before the railroad commission.

Assemblyman Axel Johnson offered a resolution for investigation and prosecution of the alleged bridge trust.

"Red Sunday," when Father Gapon led a demonstration of the people before the Winter Palace and many were killed by the troops. Under orders of the prefect of police the streets will be thoroughly guarded tomorrow by the police reserves and detachments of Cossacks and dragoons.

The grand ball room of the Plaza has been magnificently decorated for the occasion. English, French, and American flags have been employed liberally in the decorative scheme in the center of the ballroom an immense snowball has been suspended, and from it trails of red streamers have been carried to the sides and corners of the room.

Many of the women who go to the ball will wear the head-dress of Spanish and Dutch peasants. Others will appear with Venetian ruffs. Neckties are to be a special feature, particularly those of the days of Queen Elizabeth.

The men have been soliciting the businessmen for subscription to the stock at $25. They say they have a large share of the money needed already raised in Beloit. This afternoon they solicited the Jamesville businessmen to see if they can interest them in the project. A sample of the machine has been exhibited in Beloit, in three interest, and many believe it will be a strong competitor to the National Cash Register.

ELECTRICAL ASSOCIATION HEARS PROF. B. H. MEYER

Member Of State Railway Commission Gives An Address In Milwaukee This Afternoon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 21.—The theory that there is no field for private initiative, nor any inducements to public utilities in Wisconsin while controlled under a public utility law, was exploded by Chairman B. H. Meyer, of the railroad commission, in an address here this afternoon before the Northwestern Electrical association, in session here. Mr. Meyer declared that profit-sharing, or the "sliding scale" authorized by the Wisconsin law was the saving feature.

"Leaving out of consideration other factors, it may be said that the consumer desires service at the lowest possible price, and the utility desires to furnish its service at the highest possible rate of profit," said Chairman Meyer.

"The nucleus of the sliding scale idea is to permit a utility to earn a higher rate of profit in proportion as the price charged by it to the consumer is increased."

While the utility law fully protects the investor in his claims for a reasonable return, this provision of the law, it appears to me, intends equally to secure the wage earner his fair share in the profits.

"A plant which can meet the highest technical requirements and earn a high rate of return, and still charge a low price to the consumer must necessarily employ the best men, which generally means that it must pay the best wages. A profit-sharing scheme, by which premiums are paid to all men employed in a given plant is as likely to work for efficiency and economy as the highest rate of return on the investment, which the manager sees for himself and the stockholders in the achievement of the same ends."

"In other words, the sliding scale and the profit-sharing scheme combine the interests of investors with those of the consumer and of the wage earners connected with the utility plant."

"The time will soon come, if it is not already here, for the commission to call a general conference of representatives of utilities, for the purpose of discussing the sliding scale and profit-sharing in their relation to the consumer, wage earner, investor, and the development of the business."

"A statement of the history of these things would afford a starting point for the deliberations of the conference."

Chairman Meyer deplored the fact that more public utilities did not surrender their franchises and receive in lieu thereof a franchise permit. He expressed the hope that the legislature will amend the law, so that utilities may surrender their franchise at any time. He declared that the opinion often expressed, that absolute monopoly prevents progress, and added: "It will be nothing less than an economic crime to attempt to reopen the door to competition in the utility business, with the mistaken notion that through such action (the public will secure better service at lower rates."

In conclusion Chairman Meyer said that his statements were entirely unofficial, and he individually responsible for them. He said if his ideas in any respect ran counter to the ideas of others in a matter which they may bring before the commission, "I shall be ready to recede myself, the very moment you have unfolded the fact which compels a reversal."

PEOPLE THROG TO CHILD LABOR

CONFERENCE WHICH ASSEMBLED IN CHICAGO TODAY.

Discussed the Establishment of a Children's Bureau by the General Government.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 21.—Orchestra Hall of the fine arts building, spacious though it is, was scarcely able to accommodate the throng of men and women who gathered there today at the opening of the fifth annual conference of the national child labor committee. Sitting side by side in the assemblage were statesmen, philanthropists and labor leaders, all united by a common interest in the welfare of the youth of America.

The presiding officers at the opening of the conference was Professor Felix Adler of Columbia University, who is chairman of the national child labor committee. Speakers to be heard during the three days of the conference include Governor Deneen of Illinois, ex-Governor Falk of Missouri, the professor Charles R. Henderson of the University of Chicago, Dr. Henry H. Fay of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, and John Mitchell, former head of the United Mine workers of America.

While every phase of the child labor problem is to be discussed, the establishment of a children's bureau is the central idea of the conference. Such a bureau, it is proposed, should investigate and report upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life and would especially investigate questions of infant mortality, the birth rate, orphanage, physical degeneracy, juvenile delinquency and juvenile courts, desertion and illegitimacy, employment dangerous occupations, accidents and diseases of children of the industrial classes, legislation affecting children in the various States and Territories and such other facts as have a bearing upon the health, efficiency, character and training of children.

One of the features of the conference will be a paper by Dr. Thomas A. Rolch of Boston on the chronologic and autonomic age in connection with the Keeton ray. Dr. Rolch is regarded as the leading American authority on children, and he will show that laws designed to protect children should take into account the autonomic age rather than the chronologic age.

Child Up-Lift.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 21.—The "child up-lift conference" which, according to the suggestion of President Roosevelt, is to be held in this city next week, promises to be of much importance. Acceptances are being received at the White House daily from men and women throughout the country who have been invited to part in the conference. Arrangements for the gathering are rapidly nearing completion. The program of the conference provides for an address in the East room of the White House on the opening day by the President, and responses by Jacob R. R. of New York, Judge Dan B. Lindsay of Denver, and one or two other notable students of sociology.

Monday night here will be a session at the New Willard followed by a banquet. On the following day the care of orphan children will be discussed. An important question to be considered in this connection is whether children, normal in mind and body, and not requiring special training, who must be removed from their homes, be cared for in families, wherever practicable, rather than in institutions.

New York, Jan. 21.—A two days' session of the New York Waterways' conference began at the rooms of the Manufacturers' Association in this city today with a good attendance of delegates representing boards of trade, chambers of commerce and other business and civic organizations interested in the upbuilding of trade and commerce of the state. The purpose of the conference, as outlined in the call for the gathering, is to discuss ways and means and the adoption of methods best calculated to secure the improvement and development of the waterways of New York as a means of conserving and adding to its present trade and commerce.

Crack Shots in Tourney.
Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 21.—More than 150 amateurs, representing the best shot in the country, faced the traps today at the opening of the second annual midwinter trap shooting tournament here. The attendance included both amateurs and professionals, prominent among the last named being Fred Gilbert, Thomas A. Marshall, J. A. Elliott, George W. Maxwell and H. S. Welles.

The program of the tournament extends over a period of three days. The trophies include cups to both the primary and handicap winners, medals for the highest amateur averages and a medal for the highest professional average.

To Pool Tobacco Crop.
Louisville, Ky., Jan. 21.—The Union Society, representing the Kentucky district of Kentucky, met in Louisville today to perfect plans for pooling this year's tobacco crop. Reports from all sections indicate that the crop will be one of the largest in the history of Kentucky.

GUARANTEED DEPOSITS
It was hoped, after the presidential election had demolished the various "patronage issues" evolved by Mr. Bryan, that the guarantee of bank deposits had been relegated to the obscurity from which it ought never to have emerged. There was a good chance to allow the state of Oklahoma to demonstrate its fidelity, and even those who were democratic governors were elected, could well have afforded to wait for the completion of that obligation.

The governor of Nebraska, however, rushed in where angels fear to tread with a declaration on the subject which might have been written by Mr. Bryan himself. There is a superficial attractiveness about the proposition and unfortunately the popularity of the idea was not entirely confined to one party either, especially in the west. It will be interesting to watch the bill to the same effect introduced in the legislature of New Jersey.

In the Bryan and later plans no difference was made between savings banks and commercial banks. A moratorium who discounted his bill for $10,000 at six months, with his deposit account correspondingly credited by the discounting bank, would be entitled to the full amount of the deposit at a certain date, and that immediately, while the collateral against his loan could not be realized until it matured.

Carry the parallel further. Imagine that in the fall of 1907, such a law had been in force in New York. An individual controlling a chain of a dozen banks could have discounted his paper for $20,000,000 among them. He could have threatened the suspension of those banks or have suspended them, with the certainty of being paid his deposit in full.

As his credit was damaged, his paper at that time was valueless. In fact, people with the best of credit could not borrow money on any terms. Nevertheless, this unscrupulous speculator would have depleted the resources of soundly-managed institutions, and would have secured $20,000,000 to bolster his speculations in the Stock Exchange at a time of international crisis.

It need hardly be said that all the banks, good and bad, would have been obliged to adopt the most extreme measures in self-defense. It will be noticed also that there would be nothing unlawful in the action of the supposed speculator.

"THE MAN OF ICE AND IRON"
New York has honored itself and the nation by sending to the Senate Elihu Root, "The Man of Ice and Iron," the man who has stood at the forefront in national life for a decade. He is a strong man, a man whose influence in the United States Senate cannot be overestimated. Van Norden's February magazine says of him:

"Elihu Root might almost be described as an intellect rather than a human being—an intellect brought to the highest stage of development by years of study and hard work. To him, it appears, men and measures have lost their vitality and have become abstract problems. There are men, 'They are' as pieces of the chess player, to be moved in the plan of the game. There are problems! They are to be solved with the inflexibility of mathematical demonstration. 'Sympathy, human interest, the hopes, fears or ambitions of individuals, the cry of the crowd, the criticism of the heedless or the demagogue, they can have no place in his calculation nor influence in his decision.'"

"The rule was as harsh on him as it was on all others. An ordinary man would have suffered from the misunderstandings that arose from time to time, but Elihu Root did, no one will ever know it."

"We may take the word of one man who studied him and wondered."

"Said William H. Taft recently to a friend, 'I have studied Elihu Root in the cabinet meetings and in his office, and I am satisfied that he is one of the few men of whom I have ever heard who is absolutely unimpaired of brain or courage.'"

"His host of us like to be told we have done well, but not Root. What his judgment tells him will work out for the best of his country, that he will do. He neither seeks praise nor expects it, content to leave to the future the verdict."

THE CALL OF THE HOUSE
"Branch of faith" is the characteristic phrase that explains the present call of the house in the state Senate. Members were assured that there would be little or no business of importance to be considered this week and staid home to arrange their business.

Then came the call of the house and they have hurried back to confront as factional an issue as was ever raised. Peace is lacking in any possible solution of the issue. No matter what the outcome really is the die has been cast.

In the future the men of the administration will have to watch the ultra element closely to avoid any repetition of the present branch of faith. Their word will not be accepted as a pledge for good behavior.

It is too bad that such a state of affairs exists. It is indeed a shame that the state legislature cannot meet petty bickerings and factionalism. The five republican senators who made this state of affairs possible have shown themselves in their true colors. They will doubtless work in union with the democratic minority, making it possible for many measures to be passed which are strictly partisan in nature.

Heart springs another coup by demanding that the Pacific fleet be sent back to the coast of California. He sees a Japanese war in the near future and no means of defense for the great strip of coast from Portland to "Prisco" and thence down along the California coast. The best way to avert such a war would be to crush all the anti-lap legislation in California; not by having an armed force patrolling the sea-coast.

Senator Hopkins begins to wonder what has struck the Illinois legislators. He knows that something is wrong, but just what it is he is at a loss to state at present. He loses voice every day and if this keeps on someone else will go down to Washington with the Sucker state credentials in their pocket and his star will have set.

It would appear as though the Majority campaign is to begin earlier than usual. Already a democratic aspirant seeks honors and the next thing in line will be for the republican candidate to appear. However, it is not always the early bird that catches the political worm.

Aldermanic positions are now open to be filled. In all five wards of the city there are aldermen to be elected, two in the third, and the new council may take on a different front from the old one with a possibility of six new members.

Another terrible crib disaster is recorded and fifty-three lives are snuffed out through the carelessness of some individual. Safety for human life should be the first consideration in every great public work.

Representative Willott of New York made a mistake when he called President Roosevelt a Gargoyles. He misunderstood the real meaning of the word or he would never have named our strenuous president with that cognomen.

We are likely to hear more truth about that Panama deal before the present grand jury investigation is finished. Sometimes the truth will out even if the clever manipulators of finance do not want everything known.

It is safe to say that Root will have Tom Platt's toga renovated before he dons it to take the office down in Washington. Renovated and thoroughly aired as well.

DONNERSTAGS HAVE REACHED THE PRISON
Three Confessed Counterfeiters Land in the Federal Prison
For Terms
Albert, Hugo and Rudolph Donnerstag, the three brothers who were arrested near Milwaukee last summer on the charge of counterfeiting, started Wednesday on their trip to Fort Leavenworth prison in charge of Deputy United States Marshals John Kelly and W. T. Pugh. They left Madison over the St. Paul road at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and reached Fort Leavenworth about 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Albert and Hugo were handcuffed together and were in charge of Mr. Pugh. Mr. Kelly was in charge of Rudolph, whose right leg was amputated above the knee, and who is obliged to walk on crutches. Miss Clara Donnerstag, a sister of the boys, accompanied them to the depot. Rudolph has a wife and several children living near Milwaukee.

Albert and Hugo were each sentenced to four years and to pay fines of $100. Owing to the loss of his leg Rudolph received a sentence of only two and a half years. He also was fined $100.

PEARLS AND MUD.
Poor Anna Gould!
We do not mean that she is poor in purse or in spirit, but poor in happiness.

Lounging for a titled husband, she snubbed her American suitors to marry Count de la Castiglione, a shameless spendthrift, consort of reprobates and brazen libertine.

Castiglione broke her heart and dragged her into the lowest depths of infamy and humiliation, from whence she emerged through a divorce court.

It might be supposed the woman had learned her lesson, but she was like the legendary man who jumped into the bramble bush and scratched out both his eyes, whereupon—

"He jumped into the bramble bush and scratched them in again."

Pursuing a like philosophy, Anna had no such fortune in her bramble bush of matrimony.

W. C. T. U. MEETING HELD ON WEDNESDAY
Much Interest Taken in Work of the Local Organization for Temperance Cause.
Yesterday afternoon at three o'clock the Women's Christian Temperance Union held a meeting at the residence of Mrs. M. H. Morley. General interest in the work is being shown by the members and a large number were present at yesterday's meeting. The program was most tastefully decorated with white streamers, from which were suspended white joy bells. The letters, "W. C. T. U.," were worked out and stood as a sort of an arch over the parlors. Much interest was shown in the plan to establish permanent headquarters in March and a special committee was appointed to take the matter up and a special recruiting committee to gain new members. This latter committee will be divided into sides and the one receiving the least number of applications will give a banquet to the one securing the most. Several prize essays were read and discussed.

DOCTORS WILL HOLD A HEALTH MEETING
Public Invited to Hear Discussions of Tuberculosis and Ventilation in City Hall, Tuesday.
With a general invitation extended to the community at large, a public health meeting is to be held by the Central Wisconsin Medical Association in the assembly chamber of the city hall next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Tuberculosis and ventilation measures will be among the topics discussed. The speakers comprise Prof. Raymond and Harper of Madison; Dr. Bennett of Beloit; and Prof. Dault of the local high school.

Men who have made hygiene a life study will there be gathered and it is hoped that a large number of laymen will take enough interest in the matter to be present. The committee of arrangements comprises Drs. F. W. Nazam, J. P. Pember, and G. C. Whittle.

THIEVES ENTERED HOME OF CORNELIUS HARRISON
Cans of Fruit and Clothing Were Taken from the Cellar Saturday Evening.
Some time Saturday evening sneak thieves broke into the cellar of Cornelius Harrison's home on Pearl street and succeeded in getting away with six glass cans of fruit and three suits of underwear. The theft was not noticed until yesterday, when one of the members of the family chanced to go into the cellar. The thief was not perturbed to discover the identity of the thieves as there were no clues to follow.

Seek for Verbs in Things.

The Most Dangerous Capital.

Telephone Competition —vs.— Telephone Monopoly

Did you ever stop to consider how much the Rock County Telephone Co. has saved the telephone users of Janesville since it opened for business ten years ago? It looks up nearly $300,000 saved by the big reduction in rates.

Up to ten years ago the Bell Telephone Co. had had a monopoly here for twenty years. Its rates were $4.00 per month for a business telephone and $3.00 per month for residences. During the twenty years it had only increased its list to a few over 300 telephones and the majority of those were business phones. Today there are close to 3000 telephones in Janesville—1829 on the Rock County Telephone Co. lines and probably about 1000 on the Bell.

You can have a residence telephone on either line for $1.00 per month, but a Rock County Telephone is really worth twice as much as a Bell phone because it connects you with double the number of subscribers.

THINK IT OVER!

Wouldn't you rather have the money you pay for a telephone spent in Janesville, instead of being sent to Boston, where the Bell Telephone is owned? The Rock County Telephone Co. is a home company. "Buy it in Janesville" by sending us your order and get double the service for the same money.

"The Pain Cut Out"

Do my painless methods actually remove the pain in Dental Work?

I can only say that my patients used to often yell so that you could hear them a block when I extracted a tooth.

Now there is only a casual gasp or an exclamation, and that I attribute largely to the element of fear which fills one when they undertake a trip to the Dentist.

I have hundreds of patients who get out of my chair and thank me, saying in substance, that "They care highly pleased at being saved from the pain they usually endured."

Reason says to everybody, "Avoid Pain."

I can help you in this matter.

BIG CONFERENCE COMES NEXT WEEK

SOUTHWESTERN WISCONSIN CONFERENCE OF MISSIONARY WORKERS.

THE LAYMAN'S MOVEMENT

Meetings Open on Thursday Evening, January 28th With Banquet at Baptist Church.

Next week will be one of the most important conferences of laymen ever held in southern Wisconsin. The conference will open on Thursday evening, the 28th, with a banquet at six o'clock at the parlors of the Baptist church. Cavors will be held for four hundred, all that the ladies can accommodate or serve, and following this will be a post-prandial program. Governor James O. Davidson, of Madison, will preside at this session which will be the most important of all the meetings which will follow on Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the different churches.

The Laymen's Missionary movement has its inception in New York among laymen from all denominations. Chapter 5

IT was a moment there was dead silence in the room. Harry's breath caught in his throat, and the old man's eye again fastened on the hapless son. Hugh threw up his hand with an attempt at justification, but with futile apprehension in every muscle, for he could not solve the look he saw on his father's face, and said: "You act as if it were a cool million."

"I'm no worse than a lot who have better luck than I. Suppose I did draw the five thousand. You were going to give me ten for a wedding present. I had to have the money then, and you wouldn't have given it to me. You know that as well as I do. Besides, I was going to take it up myself, and you would never have been the wiser. He promised to hold it. It's a low trick for him to round on me like this. I'll pay him off for it some time. I don't see that it's anybody else's business but ours anyway," he continued, with a surly glance at Harry.

Harry had been staring at him, but with a vision turned curiously backward—a vision that seemed to see Hugh standing at a carpeted door in a flower-hung room, while his own voice said out of a lurid shadow, "Will you have this man to be thy wedded husband?"

"Say, Sanderson," said the old man, then turning to Hugh, "Who advanced you money on this and promised to 'hold it'?"

"Dr. Moreau,"

"He profited by it?"

"He got his margin," said Hugh suddenly.

"How much margin did he get?"

"A thousand."

"Where is the rest?" David Stiles' voice was like a whip of steel.

Hugh hesitated a moment. He had still a few hundreds in pocket, but he did not mention them.

"I used most of it. I had a few debts."

"Debts of honor, I presume?"

Hugh's sensibility quivered at the fierce, grating irony of the inquiry.

"If you'd been more decent with spending money," he said with a flare of the old offensiveness, "I'd have been all right. Ever since I came home you've kept me strapped. I was ashamed to stick up any more of my friends. And of course I couldn't borrow from Jessen?"

"Ashamed?" exclaimed the old man with harsh sternness. "You are without the decency of shame! If you were capable of feeling it you would not mention her name now!"

Hugh thought he saw a glimmer through the storm cloud. Jessen was his anchor to windward. What hurt him would hurt her. He would pull through!

"Well," he said, "it's done, and there's no good making such a row about it. She's my wife and she'll stand by me, if nobody else does."

No one had ever seen such a look on David Stiles' face as came to it now—a sudden blaze of fury and righteous scorn that burned like a brand.

"You impudent blackguard! You dare my name in the gutter and then try to trade on my self-respect and Jessen's affection. You thought you would take it up yourself and I would be none the wiser! And if I did find it out you counted on my love for the poor, deluded girl you have married to make me condone your criminality, to perjure myself, to admit the signature and shield you from the consequences. You imagine because you are my son that you can do this thing and all still go on as before. Do you suppose I don't consider Jessen? Do you think because you have fooled and cheated her and me and married her that I will give her now to a caught thief, a common jailbird?"

In the thoughts that were darting through Hugh's mind there was none now of regret or of pity for Jessen. The fear was the fear of the trapped speller who discerns capture and its consequent penalties in the patrolling bullseye flashed upon him. He studied his father with hunted, calculating eyes as the old man turned to Harry Sanderson.

"Sanderson," said David Stiles once more in his even, deadly voice, "Jessen is waiting in the room above this. She will not understand the delay. Will you go to her? Make some excuse—any you can think of—Hill I come."

Harry nodded and left the room, shutting the door carefully behind him, carrying with him the cowering, helpless look with which Hugh saw himself left alone with his implacable judge. What to say to her? How to say it. He mounted the stairs as if a pack sewing from his shoulders. He paused a moment at the door, then knocked, turned the knob and entered.

There in the middle of the blue hung room in her wedding dress, with her bandaged eyes, and her bridal bouquet on the table, stood Jessen. Twilight was near, but even so all the shutters were drawn save one, through which a last glow of refracted sunlight shined to fall upon his face. Her hands were clasped before her. He could hear her breathing—the full, hurried respiration of expectancy.

Then, while his hand closed the door behind him, a thing unexpected, anomalous, happened—a thing that took him as utterly by surprise as if the solid floor had yawned before him. Slim fingers tore away the broad encircling bandage. She started forward. Her arms were flung about his neck.

"Hugh, Hugh!" she cried. "My husband!"

The pale face was stricken suddenly from Harry's face. An odd, dazed color, a flush of mortification, of self-reproach, flooded it from chin to brow. Despite himself he had felt his lips quivering to an answering kiss beneath her own. He drew a gasping breath, his hand nervously caught the bandage, replaced it over the eyes and tied it tightly, putting down her protesting hands.

"Oh, Hugh!" she pleaded, "not for a moment—not when I am so happy! Your face is what I dreamed it must be! Why did you make me wait so long?"

"And I can see, Hugh! I can really see! Let it stay off, just for one little moment more!"

He held her hands by force. "Jessen, wait," he said in a broken whisper. "You must not take it off again—now!"

An incredible confusion enveloped him. His tongue cleaved to the roof of his mouth. Not only had the painful contretemps happened and disarranged him; not only had it heightened and horrified the realization of what she must presently be told—it had laid a careless hand upon his own secret, touching it with an almost vulgar mockery. It had overturned in an instant the barricades he had been piling. The pressure of those lips on his had sent coursing to the farthest recesses of his nature a great wave which dikes nor locks might ever again forbid.

"What a dear goose you are!" she said. "The light didn't hurt them—indeed, indeed! Only to think, Hugh! Your wife, will have her sight! Do go and tell your father. He will be waiting to know!"

Harry made some incoherent reply. He was desperately anxious to get away. His thought was a snarl of tatters threaded by one lucid purpose—to spare her coming self-abasement this sardonic humiliation.

He almost ran from the room and down the stairs.

CHAS. S. BUTTON ON HIS FOURTH TERM

Named Postmaster of Milton Junction—Long Resident of the County.

President Roosevelt yesterday reappointed Chas. Button of Milton Junction as postmaster of that village for another term of four years, making it the fourth term which Mr. Button will have served since his first appointment by President McKinley.

Chas. S. Button was born in Royalton, Vt., Dec. 2, 1841. He was educated in the common school and his boyhood days were spent on a farm in the Green Mountain state. In 1865 he entered the employ of the Fairbanks Seal Co. at St. Johnsbury, Vt., where he remained until 1874, when he came to Wisconsin, locating at Milton Junction, where he opened a general store. For twenty-five years he was one of the leading merchants of the village. In the fall of 1890 he was elected Town Chairman, but resigned the office in the fall, having been appointed postmaster by the late President William McKinley. He has also held other offices of trust in his home village.

In 1902 he was reappointed postmaster by President McKinley for a second term and in 1905 was again named

He is a prominent Mason, having been a member of the order for 45 years, a past master, and a member of Royal Arch Chapter at St. Johnsbury, Vt., and a member of Janesville Commandery, Knights Templars. During his long service as postmaster he has conducted the office with credit to himself and honor to the department.

No one has a larger acquaintance or is more favorably known than Mrs. Chas. S. Button. For twenty-five years she has had charge of the dry-goods department of the store, and for the past nine years has been assistant postmistress, having charge of the money order department. She has been courteous and obliging and has won the respect of all the patrons of the office.

MANITOWOC NAMES CHAUTAUQUA DATES

Gas Company is Ready to Permit Its Books to Be Examined.

Manitowoc, Jan. 21.—July 16 to 25 are dates selected for Manitowoc's second annual chautauqua, in which Mrs. Florence Maybrick and Governor J. A. Johnson of Minnesota are to be the star attractions. Harry Holbrook, of the Holbrook agency, Chicago, is in the city to arrange for the event and a meeting will be called shortly to launch the project with the cooperation of business men. The chautauqua will be held in the city this year.

That the Manitowoc Gas company is willing to submit its books to the city for examination, but objects to the manner in which the proceedings have been instituted because under an adverse examination the city is privileged to accept or reject any part of the evidence it wishes, is the declaration of R. C. Douglas, of the company who was subject to an attack by City Atty. Houghton in the proceedings in circuit court yesterday.

Douglas declares that the Gas company has offered its books on several occasions and intimates that the city attorney is "making a play." Judge Kirwan has the matter under advisement, the question at issue being whether the city can inspect the books without consent of the rate commission which is hearing the original action on rates.

Goodville's municipal electric lighting plant squabble will reach the courts in an action by machinery companies to recover for machinery placed in the plant. The village claims the machinery unsatisfactory and inadequate and has ordered the companies to remove it and an attempt yesterday to arrange a settlement is said to have failed. As a result the companies threaten suit. The city voted for the plant two years ago and it has just been installed.

This city will observe Lincoln's birthday as a holiday and public exercises have been planned by the G. A. R., Spanish war vets and German Kreiger Verein, at which Municipal Judge Albert Schmidt and Rev. Hentzner, German, will deliver addresses. Co. H, State guard, fraternal and civic societies and school children will take part.

MAN KILLED; BRIDE STOLEN

Brutal Crime of Three Italians at Middletown, N. Y.

Middletown, N. Y., Jan. 21.—A brutal murder which had as its object the kidnapping of the young bride of one of the two victims, was committed just outside of this city Tuesday night by three Italians. The victims were Flazio Gaetano, who was instantly killed, and Scanlon Carmine, his friend, who is dying in a local hospital from wounds inflicted by shots from a revolver. The bodies of both men were found stretched across the railroad tracks near the scene of the tragedy, where they had been placed with the evident intent of hiding the crime.

Mrs. Gaetano was found last night by the authorities in an Italian shack on the outskirts of the city. She was in a serious condition as a result of nervous shock, exposure and the ill-treatment to which she had been subjected. She told the authorities that she had been taken to the shack immediately after the shooting.

Fan Easily Handled.

A patent has been granted on a fan, the propeller-like blades of which are driven through gear wheels by a lever operated by one finger of the person holding it. The inventor claims it obviates the effort needed for using the ordinary fan.
